

JO ELLA ALLEN

I took up watercolors to fill a gap left after I retired from a busy position as a high school Principal. But soon, after participating in a few classes I fell deeply for the medium. Over the past few years, I have worked diligently to perfect the craft and feel that I have finally uncovered the mysteries of watercolor painting. Also, over the past 3 years I have been teaching weekly classes to others interested in the art, in the endeavor of opening the door to the feeling of accomplishment and joy that painting can bring.
