ERIC OSTRANDER

As an artist, I am driven by curiosity and creativity. I explore beyond what the eyes see into the totality of what is happening. I value technique over design. I give ideas direction and let the composition evolve. This is my definition for abstractionism.

My paintings consist of bright and colorful acrylics on canvas, both large and small. I use different methods of application in layers to generate energy. I use the energy around me to create unique representations of reality. Energy is the source of everything that exists and the force that gives life to my paintings.

I am an amateur artist looking to expand my network and exposure. I am self-taught and have been painting at my home in Folsom, CA after hours and on weekends since 2017.
