

Artist's Biography
Gertrude "Trudy" Korf

Trudy always loved art.

After college, while teaching elementary school, she took art classes in the evenings and during the summers. After having two children, she took drawing, design, oil painting and art history classes at American River College.

She always studied independently in art galleries and museums in New York, Boston, Los Angeles and San Francisco. In 1965, Trudy took an art and architecture tour of Europe through San Francisco State College.

In the 1980s, when she had a body of work in her own styles, she showed in Sacramento, San Francisco and New York. She received good reviews.

Trudy does colorful, abstract oil paintings, expressive drawings and some imaginative work. Nature and her feelings toward peace and conversation inspire her pieces.
