

Diana Latimer Artist Bio

Diana took up art after retiring from a career in aerospace and defense and an education lacking in any form of artistic expression with the exception of drafting.

Initially she was looking for a better understanding of good color choices to help with her quilting hobby. She enrolled in a general art class at Lassen Community college taught by Beverly Mendosa and began to learn about art and to develop a new appreciation for art and artists at all levels.

She has painted in oil, acrylic and watercolor.

The majority of her paintings are from her own photographs.

She enjoys attempting to paint in plein air especially when it also involves a trip to Europe.

She joined Folsom Arts Association on moving to Folsom in 2017 and is happy to have found a group where she can see a variety of artist demos, attend workshops and art camps, and continue to develop her art.
